

Speaker: Adam Booher
University of Utah

Wednesday, October 14, 2015

5:00 PM

229 Hayes-Healy Hall

Title: "Adam Booher, Class of '08"

Abstract:

Notre Dame alumni Adam Booher gives an autobiographical lecture about how majoring in math at Notre Dame has affected his career path since graduating. Aimed at undergraduates majoring in mathematics with unsure career aspirations, this lecture series will serve to give context to the value of a degree in mathematics and the availability of post-graduation options to the student; whether that be graduate school in mathematics or another subject, professional school, or entering straight into industry.