Some Thoughts for Teaching Your First Class

Abstract

Teaching your first mathematics class is both an exciting and challenging experience. There are certainly lots to think about: Who are we teaching? What should our expectations be? What should be discussed in class? Where should we get help as a new teacher when we have questions? In this lecture, I like to talk about some practices that are important to keep in mind when we teach a class especially one that we are teaching for the first time.
