Lecture Title:

Some Thoughts for Class Preparation

Abstract

Teaching mathematics is both an exciting and challenging experience. This is especially for the first class we teach. There are certainly lots to think about: Who are we teaching? What should our expectations be? What should be discussed/explained in class? Where should we get help as a new teacher when we have questions? In this lecture, I like to talk about some practices that are important to keep in mind when we teach a class especially one that we are teaching for the first time.
